In development for PlayStation 4, Xbox One and PC, FIFA 22 will be released this August. *Follow our FIFA 22 blog for more upcoming info on the game and the new HyperMotion engine. The biggest difference between FIFA 19 and FIFA 22 is the implementation of the new “HyperMotion Engine,” which turns players into robots with the ability to react and perform multiple actions at the same time. This allows players to perform more realistic and dynamic movements. New features are also added to the new engine, such as improved ball control and increased awareness in tight spaces. Players have more control over the ball, and will slow down when they need to, or take time to read the situation. If the player is not confident in ball control, they can increase their physicality in situations with more risk. The new engine also includes two new cameras, which show the distance from the player to the ball and the player’s opponent, as well as a new view of the situation from the player’s point of view. The speed is increased, and players can also duck, dive or push a player to lose the ball. This lets players be in control, and make their own decisions on the pitch. “We now have the tools to put players in the shoes of the real-life counterparts, let them move and take the ball,” said Craig Beason, Producer of FIFA. “FIFA 22 is a huge step forward in game development.” In FIFA 19, players were able to take bigger strides with the ball. In FIFA 22, players have the ability to sprint, accelerate, and can change direction instantly, without slowing down the player as they pass. The controls have been improved to give players more control, with a new double-tap of the trigger buttons to initiate sprints. New dribbling mechanics have been created that allow
